INTRODUCTION

IN 1847, the Rev. John Stetson Barry (1819-1872), who was minister of the Universalist Church in Hanover from April 1, 1841, to April 1, 1844, and who spent many years in studying and writing local history, published a volume of about one hundred pages of genealogy of the Stetson family.

In the eighty-five years which have intervened between the publication of that brief genealogy and the beginning of the publication of this work, many more of the lines of descent from the common ancestor have been found and generations have lived whose record should be included in the genealogy of the family.

Continuing the work of Rev. John Stetson Barry, Mr. Nelson Mitchell Stetson twenty-five years ago began a more complete genealogy of the Stetson family. Having retired from active business he devoted his entire attention to the project until the end of his life, June 13, 1930. He gave unsparingly of his time and strength to the work but death removed him before the book was published.

The great amount of valuable material which he had accumulated in manuscript form was given to the present editor by Mr. Stetson with an expressed desire that the work be completed and published, and the Publication Committee of the Stetson Kindred of America, Inc., have by vote directed that this be done. The editor is glad and proud to continue the genealogy so nobly and faithfully begun and here to acknowledge the great part Mr. Nelson Mitchell Stetson has contributed to the work as now presented. To his widow and daughter who have continued their interest and helpfulness credit is due.

To Miss Esther Stetson Barry, daughter of Rev. John S. Barry, appreciation and thanks are given for her helpful suggestions and the contribution of her father's notes made after the publication of his genealogy of the family, and for permission to use her published work William and Esther Barry and their Descendants which is freely quoted.

The editor takes great pleasure in thanking all members of the family who have co-operated both with Mr. Nelson M. Stetson and the present editor in furnishing information of the kindred, and asks their continued help until the completion of the work.

Freedom has been exercised in quoting from various printed genealogies and town histories, and authority so far as known has been stated and credit given.

The publication of this genealogy is a distinct departure from the stereotyped form of printing family records. First, it is purposed that this shall be a history of the family and not merely of those male lines which have retained the Stetson name. In following out this purpose an attempt is made to trace all lines of descent from Cornet Robert Stetson and Honor, his wife, insofar as it is possible. Thus the genealogy will be a record of those persons of blood descent rather than a record of a family name.

Secondly, it is purposed to print the records in instalments of four separate Quarterlies a year which will when combined constitute one volume with an index. Volumes thus constituted will be continued from year to year until the entire record is published. This method is adopted to enable all interested persons to procure the genealogy by small and easy payments as the volumes are published from year to year, and to make available to the family those records which have been completed while the remainder of the work is in preparation. Because of the numbering scheme adopted and the plan of adding appendices as occasion requires, opportunity is afforded for making corrections and inserting additions which may be discovered from time to time, thus producing when the work is completed a more authentic genealogy than could otherwise be obtained.

NUMBERING KEY

Only by a flexible numbering plan can new matter and newly discovered family lines be inserted. Therefore, the form of numbering found herein, which has this advantage, has been adopted. The plan is very easy to understand and to follow.

Cornet Robert Stetson, the emigrant ancestor, is numbered 1. His oldest child, Joseph, is 1-1; the second, Benjamin, is 1-2; the third, Thomas, is 1-3 and so on to Robert, the last child who grew to maturity and had a family and who is numbered 1-8. Joseph's oldest child is numbered 1-1-1, his second child 1-1-2 and his third 1-1-3 and so on. Robert's oldest child is numbered 1-8-1, his second child 1-8-2 and so on.

The second generation will have two figures and the tenth generation ten figures, which makes it a simple matter by counting the index figures to place any name found in the record in its proper generation.

For example: The editor of this work is in the ninth generation of descent from Cornet Robert, therefore there will be nine figures in his index number which is 1-8-1-2-8-2-8-2-3, and signifies that he is descended from the Cornet's eighth child, Robert; from that Robert's first child, Isaac; from Isaac's second child, Cornelius; from Cornelius' eighth child, Thomas; from Thomas' second child, Benjamin; from Benjamin's eighth child, Simon; from Simon's second child, Charles Sanford, whose third child is the editor.

The great number of localities referred to in the first portion of this genealogy are in Massachusetts and to save constant repetition of the name of the Commonwealth it will be understood that where no state is named Massachusetts is meant.

Only the common and well known abbreviations are used in this work with the exception of V.R. for vital records of towns, Ch. Rec. for church records and G.S. for grave stone records.

I

CORNET ROBERT STETSON, b. 1613, d. Feb. 1, 1702/3, at Scituate; m. (1) HONOR ( ). He m. (2) Wid. MARY (HYLAND) BRYANT (Widow of JOHN BRYANT), dau. THOMAS and ——— ( ) HYLAND. He resided at Scituate.

Mr. Deane, who wrote the History of Scituate, states on what seems to be excellent authority, that Rev. John Lothrop, "the first regularly settled minister of Scituate," with about thirty of his people arrived in Scituate on the ship Griffin in 1634, and that Samuel House was one of this company. As Robert Stetson, aged about twenty-one years, arrived this same year, and received, as it seems from the above, a grant adjoining that of Mr. Lothrop and Samuel House, it is a reasonable conjecture that he also was a member of Mr. Lothrop's company.

Robert Stetson was the only pioneer of New England bearing the name Stetson who left male offspring. There were, however, among the early pioneers, contemporary with the Cornet, two others bearing the name, i. e., Deacon William of Charlestown, 1632, and Vincent of Millford. Of Vincent we have few notes. He was of Millford in 1646 and in Marblehead in 1674. He returned to Millford (Savage's Genealogical Dictionary). He left at least one daughter, who married George Barlow, and whose posterity is scattered far and wide.

From Charlestown Genealogies and Estates we glean that Deacon William Stetson, or "Will Stitson" as he is sometimes called on the records, was an inhabitant in 1632, was admitted to the church with wife Elizabeth in 1633, was deacon of the First Church of Charlestown for over 31 years (Gravestone Record), married for second wife widow Mary (Norton) Hill Aug. 22, 1670. He died April 11, 1691. As a young man he kept the ferry. He became wealthy and possessed large estates. In Pope's Pioneers we are told he came via Boston, had no children of his own, and in his will, probated in 1692, bequeathed his property to the eight children of his first and second wives "and to Sarah Johnson who now dwels with me." "Negro Sambo shall have his freedom." He had accounts with people of Bristol, England. It is elsewhere stated that Deacon William Stetson was several times chosen Representative to the General Court, that he, together with Major Sedgwick (leader of the Colony forces in the Dutch War), built the first mills in Charlestown, and was one of the trustees named in the marriage settlement of Martha Coytmore when she married Governor Winthrop. Although these two, Deacon William of Massachusetts and Cornet Robert of Plymouth Colony, resembled each other in many ways, we have discovered no other evidence of relationship.

No thorough search has been made in the English records for the history of Cornet Robert Stetson before his emigration to America. Such perfunctory examinations as have been made have not discovered him. From the fact that he is reputed as unable to read and write, it is not surprising that whoever made the list of passengers of the ship on which he came wrote his name as it sounded by pronunciation and doubtless some name intended to represent him is on some ship list but has never been identified. More careful search will be made as time and finances admit, and the results of the examination will be printed in succeeding Quarterlies of the genealogy.

The maiden surname of Honor, his first wife, and the mother of all his children, has never been discovered either. From the fact that he was in Scituate in 1634 and that his first child was not born until 1639, five years later than his known arrival, it would suggest that he was not married when he came to Scituate unless there were children older than those on record, who died.

For many years it was thought that the name of his wife was Hannah, but it is now determined that her name was Honor, and probably should be correctly spelled Honour.

Robert Stetson is first mentioned in Scituate records in 1634. He continued to live there until his death at the age of 90 years. He was the earliest settler in the south part of the town which is now known as Norwell, and built the first mill there. Inducements were offered by the town of Scituate to any one who would build a mill on the Third Herring Brook, and in 1656 the following was entered on the Scituate and Plymouth Colony records:

Att a full Towne meeting of the towne of Scittuate
November the tenth, 1656

ffree libertie was this day graunted to any man or men of the town to sett up a Saw Mill upon the third herring brooke as neare the North River as conveniently it may bee on these conditions viz: that in case any of the townes men doe bring any Timber unto the Mill to be sawne the owners of the mill shall saw it whether it bee for boards or plank before they saw any of theire owne Timber and they are to have the one halfe for sawing of the other halfe.

And in case any man of the Towne that doth not bring any timber to the mill to be sawne shall want any boards for his owne p'ticulare use the owners of the mill shall sell him boards for his particular use soe many as hee shall need for the Country pay at three shillings and six pense an hundred Inch sawne, but in case the men of the Towne doe not supply the mill with Timber to keep it att worke: the owners of the mill shall have libertie to make use of any Timber upon the common to saw for theire benifitt: and in case any man or men of the towne doe undertake to build a saw mill as aforesaid they shall begine the worke within three monthes after this day or ells this order to bee voide.

JAMES TORREY, Town Clarke

We whose names are underwritten doe testifye, testifye that we were with Robert Stutson att worke the ninth of ffebruary 1656 to provide Timber to build the saw mill that the said Robert Stutson hath built.

JOSEPTH WORMELLE, his marke
JOHN HUDSON, his marke
JOSEPH BERSTOW, his marke

Although Mr. Hatherly and Joseph Tilden were associated with Cornet Stetson in building this saw mill on the third Herring Brook in 1656, the records seem to indicate that the Cornet was the principle factor in the enterprise and even to this day the "Cornet's old pond," "Cornet's Mill" and "Cornet's Dam" are familiar terms when referring to these localities. We learn, however, from old deeds at Plymouth that Cornet Stetson in 1662 sold one-third part of the mill, possibly all he owned, to Joseph Tilden. (Plym. Deeds.) Mr. Tilden was a relative of Mr. Hatherly, settled his estate and eventually came into possession of the mill, as his widow in settling his estate sold the mill in 1673 for 43 pounds (Col. Court Rec. Vol. V, P. 121).

Cornet Stetson also built the earliest mill in what is now the town of Hanover at "Drinkwater," near the Indian Head River, before 1673, probably in 1656 when he received the first grant from the Colony on that river.

While Mr. Barry did not discover this, and Mitchell and Deane in their histories make no mention of it, proof is very clearly given by Mr. Nelson M. Stetson in his brochure on Cornet Robert Stetson as contained in Volume No. 6 of the published books of the Stetson Kindred of America.

In 1658 the Colony Court realizing that the horsemen of the various towns should be organized for the protection of the colony, ordered raised a "troop of horse" which was to be "well appointed with furniture, viz., a Saddle and case of patternels for each horse." "Patternels" were huge pistols carried by cavalry in the fifteenth century. Later each trooper was ordered to have a suitable horse in condition always ready for immediate service. Governor Bradford's son William of Plymouth was commissioned captain of this company, Governor Prence's son-in-law (his only son was in England) John Freeman of Eastham was commissioned lieutenant and Robert Studson of Scituate was commissioned Cornet. (Plym. Col. Court Rec. Vol. III, P. 174.) This at once became the most valuable company in the colony and consisted of three "squadrons," one at Plymouth under Captain Bradford, one at Eastham under Lieut. Freeman, and one at Scituate under Cornet Stetson. The full company met only on special occasions and at the annual trainings.

A good idea of the duties of a "Cornet of horse" of those days may be obtained from the following court orders of 1667.

"The Councell of Warr have determined that during any appearance of danger . . . . The Troop in each towne be ordered by their owne officers or where such are not, by such as are of the grand councell of that towne, to be redy att all times to goe forth as scouts: upon discovery to carry intelligence from place to place, as there may be occasion, and to do such service further as need may require . . . . that in time of danger the troopers of Plymouth repaire to the governor as his guard until further notice." (Col. Court Rec. P. 144-145.) It was, then, their duty to be in constant touch with each other, to keep their leaders and the towns informed of any signs of hostility or movements of the enemy. They must be good horsemen, well mounted, alert and of good judgment, mentally and physically fitted for the position.

For twenty years he held the offices of "Cornet of the Troop of Horse" and one of the "Counsell of Warr," and annually for seventeen years Scituate sent him as her representative to the Plymouth Colony Court.

Cornet Stetson was often employed by both town and colony in their dealings with the Indians, the laying out of roads and land grants, and in the adjustment of difficult situations. For many years the name of "Cornett Stetsun" is the most conspicuous name on the Scituate records. The records of Scituate's town meetings previous to 1666 are lost. After that date the records were kept in the book called the "Scituate Town Meeting Book," and at this first recorded town meeting, held in 1666, Cornet Robert Stetson was chosen first selectman.

The following year Scituate again "voted to choose three selectmen" and the Cornet was again chosen first selectman (See page 14). This board of selectmen, chosen at this time, was given much authority by the court, and after being approved by the magistrates, constituted a little court complete in itself. They were both judges and jurors, were given "power to issue executions and enforce their judgment," were authorized to try all cases involving not over forty shillings, and to settle all differences between the townspeople and the Indians.

In July, 1646, the following was entered upon the Colony Records:

"Upon complaint by some of the inhabitants of Scittuate that there was great want of heighways to be layed forth and a former jury have beene empaneled to have donn the same who have not yet for divers yeares recorded their verdict . . . . the court doth therefore order that a warrant shalbe directed to the constables of Scittuate requireing them to cause a sufficient jury to be empaneled before Mr. Timothy Hatherly, who upon their oathes shall lay forth all such wayes with as much conveniency for the gen'all and as little p'judice to the p'ticulars as may be according to the act of the court (Plym. Colony Court Rec., Vol. II, P. 106).

In compliance with this order a jury was soon empanelled before Timothy Hatherly with Cornet Stetson as foreman and ways were speedily laid out. Among the most important of these were the "Towne Way" over Palmers Log Bridge through Greenbush to the harbor, and the "Countrey Road" from "Berstows Bridge" (now North River Bridge) to Hingham.

A page from the records of Scituate will readily show the importance of Cornet Robert Stetson in the opinion of his fellow townsmen. He was, at this meeting, chosen one of a special committee, a Deputy to the Colonial Court and one of the town's Selectmen.

"The Towne chose three men to prosecute this order, and the order bearing date the 8 of December 1664 respecting timber.

The men chosen are

Capt. Cudworth
Cornet Stetsun
Mr. Tillden

The men chosen are Cornett Robard Stetsun,

Isack Chittenden.

In 1665 Cornet Stetson received from the Colony a grant of 200 acres of land for his services in settling the difficulties with the Indians at "Kennebeck Plantation," and during Philip's War, although well past his sixtieth year, he not only led his "Squadron of Troopers," but was chosen "Town Councell" and "Agent for the town" to provide clothing, food, ammunition, etc., "for the soulgers," and he was, with General Cudworth, chosen "Press Master" during that time.

We are told that Robert Stetson was "only a cornet"; that "he couldn't even write his name." Now if this be true—and there seems to be no evidence that it is not—isn't it remarkable that he should have been chosen repeatedly to represent Scituate, at that time the wealthiest and most populous town in the colony,—Plymouth not excepted—as their deputy to the colony court, and always with, or alternately with, such men as Gen. Cudworth, Lt. James Torrey and John Cushing, who were among the best educated men in Scituate or in the colony? Certain it is that they shared this honor with the unlettered "Cornet of the Troopers" until he had served the town in this capacity for seventeen years: twice as long as any other deputy from Scituate. We must infer from this that he was a man of unusual ability, and that he had the confidence of the freemen of Scituate. As long as Cornet Stetson lived he was—possibly with one exception—the only deputy chosen to represent at the Colony Court that part of Scituate now known as Norwell, Hanover and the "Two Mile" district of Marshfield.

In 1668 he purchased of the Sachem, Chikatabutte, for the Colony a tract of land at Drinkwater, in Hanover, containing 6 square miles, a large portion of which had already been granted to him by the Colony Court.

At the beginning of Philip's War the Colony sent him with other eminent men to Mount Hope to interview King Philip in an endeavor to avoid the war. He was also chosen with the same men to establish the disputed "Pattent Line" between the Plymouth Colony and the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

During the period in which Cornet Stetson was active in the affairs of the Government, nearly all who participated were connected by family ties, and each member owed his preferment in some measure to family connection and influence. Major Josias Winslow was the son of Gov. Edward, and Major Bradford was son of Governor Bradford; Captain Thomas, and Treasurer Constant, Southworth were the sons of "Mistress Allice Bradford," the Governor's wife; Captain Benjamin Church was the son-in-law of Treasurer Constant Southworth, and the Colonial Secretary, Nathaniel Morton, was a nephew of Governor Bradford; Governor Prence's wife was daughter of Elder Brewster, and Major Freeman, formerly of the Troopers, was Governor Prence's son-in-law; but unless Honor, the Cornet's wife, was of "royal blood," we know of nothing except character, ability (and quite possibly his personality) that contributed to the Cornet's preferment for a place in the government.

We do not know that the Cornet was connected with any church previous to the establishment of the Second Church of Scituate (now the First Church of Norwell), but Rev. William Witherell, the first minister, having been ordained the previous month, baptised on October 6th, 1645, the Cornet's three oldest sons.

Cornet Stetson does not seem to have been very active in affairs of the church. It is somewhat difficult to imagine this practical trooper entering very warmly into a dispute over the relative merits of baptism by sprinkling and by immersion, but we notice one instance in which he acts in his usual role of peacemaker with a committee of the church in the interest of harmony. Previous to 1654 there was a continued controversy between the followers of Mr. Chauncy of the First Church, and the followers of the more liberal Mr. Witherell of the Second Church, chiefly over the method of baptism and administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Mr. Witherell's last letter to Mr.

Chauncy in behalf of the Church in 1653 was a special effort to bring about a reconciliation (See copy of this letter, Dean's History of Scituate, p. 186). The committee who subscribed themselves to this letter "by order of the church" and as "your brethren in Christ" were Rev. Wm. Witherell, Elder Thomas King, Eph'm Kempton and Robert Stetson. The following year Mr. Chauncy retired and accepted the presidency of Harvard College, and the two societies became harmonious.

"We of the present time can have no conception of the continuous nightmare under which our forefathers lived. Every farmhouse in those days was surrounded by forest trees. But in those days of Indian warfare there was no knowing at what moment of night or day painted warriors might steal forth from the forest shadows and bring to the isolated settlers the same horrible fate that had been experienced by so many.

Imagine the state of mind of Honor Stetson with her family of children living far distant from neighbors. Imagine also the dilemma of Cornet Stetson himself—the powerful temptation to stay at home to guard his loved ones, and yet his sworn duty to ride forth and leave them to their fate while he directed the defenses of the vast territory of Scituate stretching from the western limits of Hanover, through Norwell, Greenbush and to the Harbor itself. Think of the impossibility of defending such a territory. There was a little garrison of twelve men at what is now Hanover Four Corners at Barstow's Tavern. There was another at Greenbush and doubtless another at the Harbor, but think of the scattered farmhouses with their defenseless women and children.

Cornet Stetson owned much land. He had a flourishing mill on the third Herring Brook near the Four Corners. He was much in demand everywhere, for in those trying days the fate of this entire section of Plymouth County was literally in his hands.

All the available militia, some thirty men, were ranging the woods in Middleboro looking for the Indians on the dreadful day when the Indians descended upon Scituate. Let me bring you the picture as I glean it from Colonial records and from the probabilities in the case:

In the early morning of May 20, 1676, Cornet Stetson, asleep in his house, was aroused by a mad clatter at his door. A terror-stricken messenger cried out the dreadful tidings that the Indians were in possession of the Stetson mill at the Herring Brook. At that moment could be seen above the tree tops a tell-tale pillar of smoke. With a hasty farewell to his wife and the younger children, the Cornet flew to his barn, saddled his horse and set off at breakneck speed up the familiar road to the settlement.

That he was riding into the very jaws of death was more than probable. The frightened messenger was sure that the attacking party was a great multitude. He himself had been awakened by the clamor of their attack upon the watchmen who were guarding the mill. He had set off instantly to warn the military commander who was also the owner of that mill.

Before the Cornet had skirted Church Hill, it was apparent that the reign of terror had begun. The mill was in flames. The house of Joseph Sylvester had been captured and was about to be put to the torch. Charging down the road, then little better than a bridle path, Robert Stetson made for the garrison at Barstow's Tavern at Four Corners, where frightened fugitives were already seeking sanctuary. The Sylvesters had escaped, fleeing from their home at the approach of the Indians.

Not knowing what move would be undertaken next, Robert Stetson resolved upon the desperate expedient of sallying forth with a mere handful of men in an endeavor to drive the Indians from the settlement. It was now full day. Leaving his horse and deploying his little band in true military fashion, the attacking force dashed from cover to cover, from trees, buildings, stone walls, anything that could afford protection, until they came within musket shot of the invaders.

In fact the smoke and flames told where the Indians were at work. Evidently the savages were dumfounded at attack when they had fancied no resistance was possible.

At any rate, at the first roar of musket and the whir of bullets in their midst the entire band of Indians scudded for cover, fleeing in the direction of the Stetson settlement where the Cornet and his older children resided.

After them in desperate haste raced the white men. To Cornet Stetson this must have been a harrowing hour, for the fleet-footed warriors vanished, going he knew not whither. But when he reached his own home he found no evidence that the Indians were in the vicinity.

Concluding at length that the savages had taken the road to Greenbush, the venerable man, now in his sixties, gathered all the neighborhood men and boys capable of bearing arms into skiffs and boats and pushed on down the river. But long before they reached the scene, rising smoke and the sound of musket fire told them that the savages had indeed taken the overland route and were then ahead of the Stetson party, busy at their deadly purpose of slaughter and pillage.

The Blackmore homestead, a few rods west of the road that leads to Union Bridge, was in flames. Marauding bands were firing other houses, for no less than twenty-one dwelling houses and barns were burned that day in Scituate. Among the houses burned was that of Robert Stetson, Jr., a son of the Cornet himself.

The main body of the savages were besieging the Stockbridge garrison on the shore of the Old Oaken Bucket Pond to which a large body of townspeople had fled for protection. The garrison were returning a brisk fire and with occasional deadly results. The Indians were firing upon the place with great regularity and endeavoring to set it in flames. Every attempt to approach it with firebrands was being repulsed. Flaming arrows were being made use of when Cornet Stetson and his little band came scurrying up from the river in a surprise attack upon the besiegers.

At about the same time, Lieutenant Buck arrived on the scene, presumably from the Scituate Harbor section, and joined the Stetson party in harassing the Indians. So great was the multitude of the invaders, however, that even this flank attack could not dislodge the savages. The fight continued until nightfall when the Indians vanished and were seen no more in the town. Among those killed in the fight were six heads of families. Many were severely wounded. It was indeed a sorry day for Scituate.

Can we not imagine the rejoicings when Cornet Stetson returned to the bosom of his family, after the most exciting experience of his long and useful life."

(Extract from address by Dean Gleason L. Archer at the Annual Meeting of Stetson Kindred of America, Inc., August 20th, 1932.)

The story of Cornet Stetson would hardly be complete without a copy of his will and the inventory of his estate.

In reading these, his estate seems small, but we should bear in mind that he was nearly ninety years of age and doubtless had during his later years spent a considerable portion of his means in providing for himself and family. Moreover he had previously given each son a large and valuable farm, and to Capt. Benjamin, two that were especially desirable.

JOSEPH STETSON, (Cornet Robert), son of CORNET ROBERT and HONOUR ( ) STETSON, b. June 1639 at Scituate, d. between 1722 and 1724 at Scituate (See will Plymouth Prob. 4/417); m. (1) RUTH HILAND, dau. THOMAS and ELIZABETH ( ) HILAND of Scituate. She d. soon after the birth of her son, JOSEPH, JR. (1667). He m. (2) PRUDENCE ( ) before 1670. He resided in Scituate.

Little has been found of the history of Joseph. He does not seem to have been prominent in the life of the community, as the only honor that is noted was that he was a constable. Joseph made his home on the home farm which remained in that branch of the family until it was purchased by the Stetson Kindred of America, Inc. He has left a large family, many of whom have become distinguished men and women.

CAPT. BENJAMIN STETSON (Cornet Robert), son of ROBERT and HONOR ( ) STETSON, b. Aug. 1641 at Scituate, d. May 4, 1711. (His estate was settled in 1715.) He m. BETHIA HAWKE of Hingham, dau. of MATTHEW and MARGARET ( ) HAWKE, on Aug. 15, 1665, at Hingham by Rev. Peter Hobart. He resided at "Bald Hill," Scituate.

Matthew Hawke, the father of Benjamin's wife, was Grammar School Master and Town Clerk of Hingham as recorded in Rev. Peter Hobart's Journal and by the Hingham records. His son, Capt. James Hawke, brother of Bethia, was grandfather of John Hancock, "The Patriot," who was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and several years governor of Massachusetts. Bethia's sister, Sarah, married John Cushing of Scituate, who was called "the Father of Judges," and Sarah was the mother of the first Judge John Cushing and the ancestor of the long line of judges that followed, including William Cushing, the Chief Justice of the United States.

In the old burying ground at Hingham is a stone bearing this inscription: "Here lies ye body of Matthew Hawke, aged 74 years, Decd. December ye 11th 1684."

In 1674 the Cornet deeded to Benjamin "In consideration of the fondest love and fatherly affection which I bear to my well beloved son" a tract of land extending from the river on the east, one-half mile back to the "Comon" on the west. A part of the line on the north was from a "fork-ed Birch tree in the swamp, unto a mark-ed beech tree close by the brooke side" . . . . . "Said Robert Stetson doth by these presents reserve for himself and any that shall come of his family, and possess his habitation . . . . . a way to and from the landing place at Bald Hills, free, and without any molestation, hindrance or disturbance." The deed was witnessed by the Cornet's trusted friends and associates, Gen. James Cudworth and Isaac Chittenden. (Plymouth Rec., B. 1, p. 28.)

The career of Capt. Benjamin closely resembles that of the Cornet. He was evidently "a chip of the old block." In King Philip's War, Capt. Benjamin was one of his father's troopers. (Scituate Rec.)

In the Canada Expedition in 1690 he served in the Hingham company with Capt. Thomas Andrews, whose son Stephen married Benjamin's daughter, Bethia. Benjamin returned to Scituate from the disastrous expedition, having left on the field not only his friends Capt. Andrews and Capt. Sylvester, whose non-cupative will he afterwards proved in the Plymouth Court, but also his younger brother, Ensign John Stetson, and, saddest of all, his promising second son, Matthew, 21 years old, of whom he had doubtless expected much.

For service in this expedition, Capt. Benjamin Stetson (Stutton) received "lots No. 68-67" in Andrewstown, Canada (Chesterfield, Mass.) (Mass. Archives, Vol. 36, p. 155.) (See Colonial Wars of Mass., vol. of 1898, pp. 182 and 183.)

In 1695 Scituate was one-third larger than any other town in the Colony. The militia numbered 200 men, and it became necessary to divide it into two companies. Capt. Benjamin's command on the south embraced the territory now included in the towns of Hanover, Norwell and a part of Marshfield.

The records of the Second Church show Capt. Benjamin to have been active in the affairs of the church. He was also prominent in town affairs. He represented Scituate at the Colony Court at Plymouth in 1691, and after the union of the colonies he was representative to the General Court at Boston in 1693, 1694 and 1700. (Colony Records.)

The Cornet deeded to his son Thomas in 1673 a river farm of 100 acres next south of his own and north of the "Bald Hill Farm," which he deeded to Capt. Benjamin the following year. Here Thomas' twelve children were born, all of whom lived to be married. Mary, the mother of Sarah Dodson, was a sister of Capt. John Willimas, who commanded the right wing of the ambuscade at the time when King Philip fell. (Dean's Hist. of Scituate.)

*Regarding Sarah, the fourth child mentioned in this family, it is noted that Mr. Nelson W. Stetson says in his notes that she married Ebenezer Bennett of Middleboro, April 23, 1719. In the family of Robert he also has a Sarah, the daughter of Robert and Joanna (Brooks) Stetson, who married Ebenezer Bennet of Middleboro on the same day. Mr. Stetson evidently copied these entries from the genealogy of Mr. John Stetson Barry, where the same mistake is made. Mr. Barry gives as his authority for Sarah being the daughter of Thomas that she was mentioned in his will as being a Bennett.

It has not yet been determined from which of the Cornet's sons Sarah (Stetson) Bennett came, and she will be inserted in both families pending definite knowledge of her.

In the year 1700, when the Cornet was in his 89th year and just before making his will, he deeded to Samuel the house and farm on which Samuel and his family were then living. From the wording of the deed it would seem probable that Samuel had occupied the farm from the time of his marriage in 1678.

The following is from the deed given in 1700:

"I, Robert Stedson, of Scituate in consideration of the tender love and fatherly affection that I have and Beare unto my well beloved son Samuel Stedson of Scituate afors'd as also for other good causes and consideration at this time Especially hereunto moving, have given - - - my uplands and swamps now and for divers years past in the Temure and occupation of the sd. Samuel Stedson, with the edifices & buildings Erected on same."

(Plymouth Col. Deeds, B. 5, p. 15. Year 1700.) (See Stetson Kindred Booklet 5, p. 13.)

Perhaps all will agree that there can be no doubt that "these divers years past" covered the period between Sergeant Samuel's marriage, 1678, and 1700, the time when his father gave him the deed.

For nearly two hundred years this house remained undisturbed. The chimney, a familiar sight in our childhood, (N. M. S.) was a huge stack of dingy gray, strangely out of proportion to the tiny structure that surrounded it. Nevertheless, this diminutive house—called "edifice" in the deed—boasted a brick oven, "set boiler" and a fireplace so large that even the larger children could easily walk into it.

We lament the ruthless destruction some fifty years ago of this old chimney—this priceless relic of the olden time.

Samuel's name appears frequently on church and town records. As early as 1692 he was connected with the second saw mill on the "3rd Herring Brook." This continued in his family for 142 years—four generations.

In 1673 Cornet Stetson and John Bryant laid out to Charles Stockbridge 34 acres of land on the west side of the third Herring Brook one-half mile below the Cornet's mill "on account of his building a corn mill" (Scituate Records, vol. 2, p. 19). Prior to 1692, Sergeant Samuel Stetson became a partner and the mills continued in his family for five generations, i. e., Capt. Jonah, Jonah 2nd, Micah, and last, Deacon Ebenezer, who sold both "saw mill and grist mill, privileges" etc. in 1832 to Samuel Salmond (Plymouth deeds, vol. 74, p. 198).

For more than one hundred years it was known as "Jonah's Mill." It is now called by the more euphonious name "Tiffany" for Recompence Tiffany, who inherited the adjoining farm and shares in the earlier mill from his father-in-law, Charles Stockbridge, Jr.

ENSIGN JOHN STETSON, (Cornet Robert), son of CORNET ROBERT and HONOUR ( ) STETSON, b. Apr. 1648 at Scituate, d. 1690 on Phipp's Canada Expedition. He m. ABIGAIL HUDSON, (See Cornet Stetson's will, also that of John Hudson), dau. of JOHN and ANN (ROGERS) HUDSON. She d. Sept. 19, 172-, aged 67. (Scituate Rec.)

John resided in Scituate. His house stood north of Church Hill on the spot where until recently stood the mansion built by Capt. Anthony Waterman about 1768.

"In the Canada Expedition in 1690 under Sir William Phipps, at the taking of Port Royal, and the attempts upon Quebec, Scituate furnished sixteen men under Capt. Joseph Sylvester, Lieut. Israel Chittenden, and Ensign John Stetson." (Deane, p. 130) John died in that expedition, and the inventory of his estate was taken by his brother, Capt. Benjamin.

"On the Plymouth records I find that 'at the Court holden at Plymouth the 3rd Tuesday of March 1690-1. In reference to the settlement of the estate of Ensign John Stetson, late of Scituate deceased, the Court do order that the oldest son, John, shall have and enjoy the house and land which his father died seized of, when said son shall attain to the age of 21 years; excepting his mother's thirds thereof during her life, he paying to Honour and Barnabas, his sister and brother, each of them 50 shillings when they attain the age of 21 years, or at the day of their marriage, which shall first happen to be. And the relict of the said deceased to have all the goods and chattels of said deceased, as her own proper estate, and the benefit of the said house and land till the heir come of age as aforesaid, for the bringing up of the said children, she paying to Abigail, her oldest daughter, and to Ann, her youngest, each of them 50 shillings at their day of marriage, or coming to the age of 21 years, which shall first be or happen.

Attested Samuel Sprague, Clerk.' " (Barry's Records 1847.)

In 1699 the following was entered on the Scituate records:

"And we laid another way from the road by Widow Stetson's as the way now goeth on the southerly side of Whiston's house, c/o northwestward by the corner of Whiston's land, c/o over the brook as the way goeth to the sawmill brook, c/o up the hill where we marked several trees, c/o as the way goeth until we came to the country road on the southerly side of Sandy Hill." (Scituate Rec., vol. II, p. 13.)

This is easily recognized as the road from the "Old Foster Place" to the country road in Hanover, via the "Waterman Place" and the Cornet's mill.

Thirty-six years later, 1735, we find a deed from Abigail Studley and Honour Hunt (daughters of Ensign John Stetson) to Robert Barker in consideration of £210. of "the place where he now dwells and whereon our mother, Abigail Stetson, deceased, in her life time dwelt" . . . "15 acres more or less, bounded westerly on Elijah Stetsons land; northerly on Gershom Stetson's land; easterly and southerly by the road, with buildings thereon" etc. (Plymouth Deeds, vol. 45, p. 231.)

There are similar references to the "widow Abigail Stetson's house" which make it plain that the estate of Ensign John Stetson was located north of Church Hill, and the house very near to the hill, probably the only land adjacent to that of his father and older brothers that was available at the time of his marriage.

This corner lot "east of Whiston's land, bounded on the south and east by the road" could have been none other than the corner where the Waterman mansion recently stood.

At the beginning of Philip's War the following appears on the Scituate records: "Paid John Stetson for making soulgers cloths 16 shillings 6 pence," from which we judge him to have been a tailor.

The first mention of Ensign John Stetson on the Colony records was in 1689, when it was "ordered that John Stetson have 15 shillings p'r weeke for being helpful to the commisary." (Col. Ct. Orders, Vol. VI, p. 229.)

The following year he was Ensign in Capt. Sylvester's Scituate company and died in the Canada expedition in 1690 at the age of 41 years. His estate received the share of land to which he was entitled for his services, i. e., a share of land at Ipswich, Canada, afterwards Winchendon, Mass. (See Society Colonial Wars, vol. of 1898, pp. 37-190.)

Children of John and Abigail (Hudson) Stetson:

i Abigail, b. May 1677 in Scituate.

ii John, bap. May 4, 1679 (Rec. of 2nd Ch.). His birth does not appear with the others on the Scituate records. He d. in 1730 (Prob. Rec. Plymouth 6/405). There is no record of his marriage or family.

iii Honour, b. Mar. 1684 in Scituate; d. Aug. 22, 1739; m. Thomas Hunt of Duxbury Jan. 15, 1707/8. (Winslow's Hist. of Duxbury, p. 323.) They had a large family in Duxbury.

iv Barnabas, bap. July 16, 1682 (2nd Ch. Rec.). He was non compos mentis and d. Dec. 27, 1742. In the settlement of his father's estate his cousin, Gershom Stetson, was appointed his guardian (Prob. Rec.), but the estate was not divided until after the death of Barnabas in 1742. In 1743 Benoni Studley, son-in-law of John and Abigail, administrator, divided the estate between the only heirs, the two sisters of Barnabas, i. e., Abigail Studley and Honour Hunt.

ROBERT STETSON, (Cornet Robert), son of CORNET ROBERT and HONOUR ( ) STETSON, b. Jan. 23, 1653, at Scituate. He m. JOANNA (?) BROOKS in 1676 at Scituate (Barry), dau. of WILLIAM and WID. SUSANNA (DUNHAM) BROOKS. She was b. 1659 at Scituate.

Did Robert marry once or twice? He may have married second Deborah Brooks, sister of Joanna. On the Pembrook records we find "Peleg, son of Robert and Deborah Stetson died June 29, 1713." Deane in 1831 says "Robert married Deborah Brooks, b. 1654, daughter of William and Susanna," but 16 years later Mr. Barry, who was familiar with Deane's History, says he married her sister Joanna. He may have married both.

Of the parents of Robert's wife we find:

"William Brooks, aged 20, and his brother Gilbert, aged 14, came to New England in the ship Blessing in 1635." William was an householder in Scituate in 1644. He had married a young widow, Susanna Dunham, a niece of Mr. Timothy Hatherly. His brother Gilbert married Elizabeth, the daughter of Governor Edward Winslow.

Mr. Timothy Hatherly was prominent in the Colony government, having been Colony Treasurer, also Assistant Governor for 22 years under Governors Bradford, Prince, and Winslow. Mr. Hatherly in his will gave to "Susanna Brooks, wife of William Brooks of Scituate and to her children twelve pounds and a heffer," and added, "I acquitt her of her first husband's debt to mee." This was Mr. Hatherly's largest bequest excepting the legacy to his wife.

Robert, being the Cornet's namesake and the child of his old age, would naturally be the favored son; but there is abundant proof that Robert in his youth sowed many "wild oats" and was a source of mortification and expense to his indulgent father. The following is the clause in the Cornet's will relating to Robert:

"I give and bequeath to my son Robert my Wearing Cloaths which with what I have formerly given him I judge convenient for him."

Some have understood from this that the Cornet in a way disinherited Robert, and have imagined that he was destitute, and without doubt did find his father's old clothes "convenient"; but these overlook the fact shown on the land records at Plymouth that the Cornet, when in his eighty-eighth year, before making his will, and only a short time before his death, was "moved by love and fatherly affection" to give Robert a valuable "River farm" as follows:

"July ye 19—1700" "To all Cristian people to whom these presents shall come" . . . "I, Robert Stetson of Scituate" . . . In Consideration of the fondest love and fatherly affection that I have and bear to my well beloved son Robert Stetson of Duxborough and also for other good causes and considerations at this time especially hereunto moving . . . . have given, granted, aliened, enfoffed, made over, and confirmed unto said son Robert Stetson, all that my forty acres more or less of upland and meadow, lying and being within the township of Scituate on the easterly side of North River . . . . being a part of that tract called the 'two mile.' " (Plymouth Rec., vol. 3, p. 215.)

This tract, which he further describes as extending from the river back to the common lands of Marshfield, although containing only forty acres, must from its situation have been very desirable; and although certain that Robert's strenuous behavior during his "teens" had been anything but pleasing to his parents, we have every reason to believe that this had been long since overlooked by the Cornet.

It is a curious fact that every one of the Cornet's children excepting Robert was given a "Bible name," chosen evidently from the most circumspect characters of the Old and New Testament—Joseph, Benjamin, Thomas, Samuel, John, Timothy, Lois and Eunice. Not until the arrival of the sixth child did the Cornet and Honour depart from this rule. Strangely enough, Robert seems to have been the only one to cause his parents anxiety.

The year 1676 was a very eventful one in the life of Robert. In this year his suit for the hand of Joanna Brooks culminated successfully, and he began housekeeping in Scituate; but alas, this same year a band of Narragansett Indians descended upon Scituate and burned, with many others, the home of Robert Stetson, Jr. (Deane) How long Robert remained in Scituate we do not know. The above deed would indicate that he was certainly in Duxbury before 1700. Later in 1709-10 in the "division of the common lands of Duxborough" Robert Stetson's grant of one hundred acres served as one of the boundaries in laying out the new lots, and in 1711-12, when Pembroke was incorporated, Robert Stetson with at least seven children with their families were here, and with the one hundred acres (then in Duxbury) were included in the new township of Pembroke.

From an act of the Massachusetts Legislature passed March 21, 1712, establishing the boundaries of the new town of Pembroke, we copy the following:

"from a stakeset by the Committee aforsaid in the line between the town of Duxbore and the lands belonging to Marshfield, or commonly called the Marshfield Upper Lands, about one hundred and four rods southeasterly from the most easterly corner of Robert Stetson's land whereon he now dwelleth."

One hundred and four rods northwest by west from this stake (now replaced by a stone post marked P. D.) brings us almost exactly to "the most easterly corner" of the one hundred acre grant of Robert Stetson as surveyed and accurately defined by the late Mercer Tilson. (See Tilson mss., deposited in the Cobb Library at Bryantville.)

Thus we may be certain that Robert Stetson still lived on his original grant when Pembroke was incorporated in 1712.

CHILDREN OF ROBERT AND JOANNA (BROOKS) STETSON:

Mr. Barry says: "The children of Robert so far as I have been able to learn anything concerning them were as follows:"

i ISAAC.
ii TIMOTHY.
iii RESOLVED.
*iv SARAH, m. Ebenezer Bennet of Middleboro, Apr. 23, 1719.

ROBERT STETSON (Joseph, Cornet Robert), son of JOSEPH and PRUDENCE ( ) STETSON, b. Dec. 9, 1670, at Scituate, d. 1760, aged 90 yrs. (Hanover Rec.) He m. MARY COLLAMORE, eldest dau. of CAPT. ANTHONY and SARAH (CHITTENDEN) COLLAMORE, on Jan. 12, 1692/3, at Scituate. She was b. 1667 at Scituate. He resided in Scituate.

Robert was a currier and lived near George Moore's Pond" until 1719. He then purchased of his father, Joseph, then in his 81st year, the Cornet's old home by the river and removed there with his family. (Plymouth Deeds 14/88.) His son, Anthony, continued to occupy the farm by George Moore's Pond. Robert later sold the Cornet's old farm to his son, William, and removed to Hanover.

Robert's wife's mother, Sarah Chittenden, was one of the twin daughters of Isaac Chittenden, who was killed while defending his home from the savages during King Philip's War. (Dean's Hist. Scit.)

He built his house near the river on a portion of the Cornet's farm. (See deed given by his father, Joseph, May 24, 1707, and acknowledged Jan. 29, 1711.) This "gambrel roof house" is still standing (1929) and was probably built at the time as his oldest son was born Mar. 3, 1712.

Benjamin's headstone still stands in the Second Parish Cemetery near the Turner lot, but that of his wife, Grace Turner, has been removed to make room for others.

*We find no record of Samuel's marriage to Elizabeth, but on the records of the Second Church several of his children are called the children of Samuel and Elizabeth Stetson.

The house of Benjamin was built on the west end of Capt. Benjamin's Bald Hills Farm. The house, a fine old mansion, was burned on Christmas eve, 1897. It stood on the west side of the road (Stetson Road) on the spot where now stands the new house of Edward Haskins. Benjamin had inherited a fine tract on the "share line" in Hanover, but seemingly preferred to build his home on the old homestead.

In 1720 the town of Scituate granted to Capt. Joseph Barstow and Benjamin Stetson, 2nd, two acres of land between "Pine Hill" and "Rocky Run" in what is now the town of Hanover for the erection of a "forge and finery" (Scituate Rec.) which was built and used by them for many years. This was at South Hanover where now stands the tack works of E. Phillips & Sons.

James Stetson (Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of Capt. Benjamin and Bethia (Hawke) Stetson, b. Mar. 1, 1670, at Scituate, d. before 1715. He m. Susanna Townsend of Boston (Boston Rec.) on Nov. 26, 1696. He resided at Boston.

Children of James and Susanna (Townsend) Stetson:

i Susanna, b. Dec. 13, 1697, in Boston; d. before 1715.
ii James, b. Sept. 11, 1699, in Boston.
iii Lydia, b. Jan. 1, 1701, in Boston; d. before 1715.
iv William, b. Apr. 26, 1704.
v John, b. Dec. 19, 1706; d. before 1715.

The births of these children are taken from the Boston records and the baptisms are on the records of the Second Church of Boston.

In the settlement of his father's estate, James' share was divided between his two children, which signifies that there were only two surviving at that date, 1715. As we have the lines of James and William, they must have been the two surviving, although no names are given in the settlement papers.

His widow, Susanna (Townsend) Stetson, m. (2) Nov. 19, 1714, Lieut. Thomas Andrews of Hingham, who was the son of Capt. Thomas Andrews. (Hingham Rec.)

Samuel Stetson (often called "Drummer Samuel" on Scituate Rec.) (Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of Capt. Benjamin and Bethia (Hawke) Stetson, b. Oct. 1673 at Scituate, d. June 23, 1760, at Hanover (formerly Scituate). He m. Rebecca Turner on May 12, 1719.

Mr. Barry calls "Drummer Samuel" the son of Sergt. Samuel, but we have found abundant proof that he was son of Capt. Benjamin. On the Scituate records "Drummer Stetson" is called the son of "Capt. Stetson." Matthew Stetson, grandson of Capt. Benjamin, had accounts with "Uncle Samuel Stetson, Drummer." (See old account books, p. 3 of the year 1750.)

Capt. Benjamin in his will (1711) bequeaths "to son Samuel the 14 acres near Drinkwater road and near the Wolf trap." Presumably the land on which Samuel built his house a little later.

Notice should be taken of this matter because Mr. Barry supposed "Drummer Samuel" was the son of Sgt. Samuel. He was really the son of Capt. Benjamin and is given his proper place in that family rather than as Mr. Barry has him.

Deacon Samuel, whom Mr. Barry had not discovered, was the son of Sergeant Samuel and appears in his proper place in that family.

Mr. Barry says in his History of Hanover "Drummer Stetson" "was a somewhat noted man in his day his house being a tavern stand and a famous resort." Religious meetings were held here before the first meeting house was erected.

The "Drummer Stetson House" is now owned and kept in an excellent state of preservation by Dr. L. Vernon Briggs of Hanover (1928).

It is not definitely known who the wife of Drummer Samuel was, other than that she was Rebecca Turner. She may have been the daughter of Thomas Turner, Sr., b. Apr. 17, 1687, who is the only Rebecca mentioned on the Scituate records. It is thought that Drummer Samuel may have married a second time and that the second wife was Widow Mercy (Dunham) Kempton.

In "Barnstable Families" and in "Dunham Records," by Isaac Watson Dunham, A.M., we find: Mercy Dunham, b. Jan. 10, 1689; m. 1st, Ephraim Kempton; m. 2nd, Samuel Stetson of Scituate Dec. 17, 1724. This would leave a question whether Samuel, who was baptized with his sisters Feb. 19, 1726, was the son of the first or the second wife.

Children of "Drummer" Samuel and Rebecca (Turner) Stetson:

i Samuel, bap. Feb. 19, 1726; b. about 1725 (Barry).
ii Lydia, bap. Feb. 19, 1726; never m. and d. young (Barry).
iii Rebecca, bap. Feb. 19, 1726; d. Aug. 28, 1765 (Barry).

1-2-8

Deborah Stetson (Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), dau. of Capt. Benjamin and Bethia (Hawke) Stetson, b. Dec. 3, 1662. She m. She resided at North Yarmouth, Maine.

Children of Samuel and Deborah (Stetson) Fisher:

i Rebecca, b. Aug. 25, 1717, at Duxbury; m. Benjamin Prince (?).
ii Samuel, b. Nov. 12, 1722, at Duxbury.

It will be noted in the Fisher Genealogy that the marriage of Deborah and Samuel Fisher is given as 1710, while in Mr. Nelson M. Stetson's notes he gave the date of marriage as Dec. 24, 1705.

Eunice Stetson (Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), dau. of Capt. Benjamin and Bethia (Hawke) Stetson, b. Mar. 1683, bap. May 27 (Ch. Rec.). She m. Dea. John James of Scituate on Mar. 18, 1700. She resided at Scituate.

THOMAS STETSON (Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and SARAH (DODSON) STETSON, b. Sept. 1674 at Scituate, d. between 1740 and 1754. His will was dated May 21, 1740, and he is named as being dead in his brother GERSHOM's will in 1754. He m. MARY BALSTON, of Boston, dau. of NATHANIEL and REBECCA ( ) BALSTON, on Nov. 18, 1715. She was b. May 6, 1697. (Boston Rec.)

Thomas was a blacksmith and lived on Orange Street in Boston. From his inventory of estate we find listed:

Mansion House on Orange Street., valued at £140.
Land lying on Summer St. 55-6-8
(Boston Prob. Rec.)

The administrators of his estate were his sons, John Stutson of Boston and Ebenezer Stutson of Watertown. (Suffolk Deeds.)

1-3-3

GERSHOM STETSON (Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and SARAH (DODSON) STETSON, b. Jan. 1676/7 at Scituate, d. Apr. 5, 1754, at Scituate. Buried in "Church Hill." Head stone in fine state of preservation. He m. (1) MARY HOLMES of Scituate on Nov. 28, 1707, who d. Sept. 9, 1708. He m. (2) ANNIE KING on Jan. 29, 1712/13, dau. of DEACON THOMAS and ELIZABETH (CLAP) KING (dau. of ELDER THOMAS CLAP).

In deeds he is recited as "Dealer," "Weaver" and "Shopkeeper," and is mentioned in Town Records as "Selectman." He lived north of Church Hill. In the records of the Second Church he is referred to as "Sergeant."

He was evidently named for his mother's brother, Gershom Dodson, who was killed the year Gershom was born, in battle with King Philip at Rehoboth.

His estate was appraised as personal £543. and real £148. One of his bequests was to the children of his son Caleb, deceased. His will was dated Mar. 27, 1754.

Gershom was very active in the Second Church, serving continually as Assessor and Collector and on numerous church committees. Mr. Barry quotes the following extract from the Second Church record:

"Whereas complaint is mad of divers badd men and women and boys and Garles on Sabbath days mack desturbance in the meeting house and else ware for Remeday The day above sd. th precinct mad choice of Mr. Peter Collomer, Mr. Gershom Stetson, Samuel Curtis jun., Elisha Silvester and Gilbord broocks to be added to the former comity to suppress all disorders on Sabbath daysboth in the time of divine sarvis and in vacancy between the publick exercise."

This was in 1732.

JOSHUA STETSON (Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and SARAH (DODSON) STETSON, b. Jan. 1680/1 at Scituate, d. May 1739. (Probate at Suffolk Co., Mass., and Newport, R. I.) He m. SARAH ( ).

Joshua Stetson was "General Sealer of Weights and Measures" and "Packer" for the Colony of Rhode Island continuously from May, 1719 to 1739. In 1740 a new official was chosen "in Place of Caleb Stutson, deceased." (R. I. Civil and Military List.) "Joshua Stetson of Newport Colony, R. I., Cooper" sold land in Hanover to his brother Thomas Jan. 21, 1730. (Plymouth Land Records 26/49.) In 1737 "Joshua Stetson, set works cooper of Newport, R. I." purchased a house and extra lot on Orange Street, Boston and 22 years later his "daughter Mary Cowell" sold this "house on Orange St., being sole owner of same." (Suffolk deeds 115/218 1759.)

Gershom Stetson in his will speaks of children of his deceased brother Joshua.

During the Revolutionary War the records of Newport, R. I., were taken by the British and sunk near Hell Gate in New York Harbor. They were later recovered, and recently by a new process they have been partially restored and are kept in vaults of the Newport Historical Society. Here we found the "Inventory of Estate of Joshua Studson of Newport, cooper" as accepted by "wife Sarah" Mar. 29, 1740.

The house and shop were on Thames Street at "West Cove," and the items principally cooper's stock in trade and tools.

It seems very probable that Joshua had children between 1700 and 1719. Where were they born and what became of them? Were they the ancestors of several Stetson families who trace their origin to Rhode Island and whose missing links are lost in the confused and scanty records of early Rhode Island town records?

CHILD OF JOSHUA AND SARAH ( ) STETSON:

i MARY (Suffolk Deeds 115/218); m. Joseph Cowell at Newport, R. I., Jan. 13, 1726 (Records of Trinity Church, Newport).

Sarah Brewster, the wife of Caleb Stetson, was the great-granddaughter of Elder William Brewster through his son Love and grandson Wrestling.

Caleb and Sarah lived in that part of Plymouth which was later "set off as a seperate parish" and afterwards incorporated as the town of Kingston. Caleb was a ship builder at Jones River at a very early date. Nov. 12, 1714, Ephraim Bradford granted to Wrestling Brewster 13 acres "att Jones River near ye landing Place where Caleb Stetson's building yard was wont to be." (Plymouth Deeds 11/76.)

In 1725 "Caleb Stetson, shipwright" purchased of Wrestling Brewster, house, land, etc., on the country road and a half interest in the landing place near Jones River. (Plymouth Deeds.)

Abigail Brewster was a sister of Sarah, who married Caleb, the brother of Elisha, and also a great-granddaughter of Elder William Brewster.

Elisha was a cordwainer. (See Stetson Kindred booklet No. 6.)

1-3-10

EBENEZER STETSON (Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and SARAH (DODSON) STETSON, b. July 22, 1693, at Scituate, d. Dec. 22, 1778, in the old house by the river where he was born. He m. LYDIA BARKER of Scituate, dau. of CALEB and ——— ( ) BARKER of Pembroke (Plymouth Deeds 26/106), on Apr. 2, 1728 (Duxbury Rec.). She d. Oct. 20, 1776, at Scituate.

When first married Ebenezer lived in Dighton. He later returned to Scituate and built his house at the west side of Church Hill, and still later by purchase from his brothers and sisters came into possession of his father's farm by the river.

He was a builder. In 1749 he leased of his cousin, Matthew Stetson, "the ship yard at Bald Hill" where he and his sons built in 1749-1752 several large vessels.

Ebenezer and Lydia are buried on Church Hill near the site of the first Episcopal Church in Plymouth Colony, which he built prior to 1731. The inscriptions on the headstones are still legible, although the stones are in bad condition.

Mr. Barry, in his history of the family, says of Ebenezer, "It is said that he was a very zealous churchman and built the church on Church Hill at his own expense."

It is remarkable how many of these traditions have since been verified. The following is from the Plymouth Records, book 29, p. 20:

"Indenture made 7th day of Jan. Ano.Dom. 1733, between Ebenezer Stetson and Lydia his wife, on the one part, and Addington Davenport, clerk and Rector of ye Episcopal Church in Scituate and wardens of sd church on the other part." Then follows the record of the sale "to Addington Davenport for £300, a certain house built for the worship of God in Scituate and the ground on which it stands." containing "one half acre, bounded on east line from the training field, there measuring ten rods, on the south, on the land of Henry Stockbridge, 8 rods — on the west on land of sd. Stetson 10 rods — on the north on land of sd. Stetson 8 rods."

JNO. CUSHING JR. Just Pac.

There are records showing that Addington Davenport was the first Rector, that the church edifice was opened for divine worship Oct. 11, 1731, eight being baptized.

We judge from this that the church building was built by Ebenezer Stetson for the worship of God, on a portion of his own land, and occupied by the Society several years before it was purchased from him in 1733, for £300 by a committee of the church consisting of Rev. Addington Davenport and others.

Rev. Addington Davenport was afterwards the first Rector of Trinity Church, Boston.

d. Jan. 4, 1726/7, at Mansfield, Conn. He m. DESIRE DUNHAM, dau. of JOHN DUNHAM of Barnstable, on Mar. 11, 1712/3. She was b. Dec. 10, 1685, at Barnstable, and d. Jan. 24, 1738/9, at Mansfield, Conn. He resided at Mansfield, Conn.

Deacon Samuel Stetson was a well-to-do farmer of Mansfield and was a Deacon of the First Church of that town.

The First Church of Mansfield, Conn., was organized Oct. 10, 1710, with Eleazer Williams as Pastor, and eight brethren. Among these eight brethren was Samuel Stetson, who was Deacon at the time of his death, Jan. 4, 1726/7.

"Samuel Stetson of Scituate" purchased land in "Wyndham," Conn., in 1705 (Mansfield Land Rec.). Jan. 11, 1708, James Ross sells a tract in Mansfield "by estimation 130 acres in consideration of one yoak of oxen to me delivered by Samuel Stetson" (Mansfield Land Rec., B. 1, p. 140).

In 1709 he was allotted land on the "East side of Nachauge River" * * * "Being a part of the fifth alotment on ye crotch and by draught ye twelvth choice to be layd out in Mansfield according to ye last Voat of ye proprietors" (B. 1, p. 114, Mansfield Land Rec.). (For sketch see Stetson Kindred, B. 5, p. 49.)

In the appraisal of his estate reference is made to a debt of £1 18s. 6d. from his brother Nathaniel, which proves him a son of Sergt. Samuel.

In an old account book kept by Matthew Stetson on an adjoining farm, he is called "Lieut. Jonah" in 1750, and "Capt. Jonah" after 1753, from which it is evident that he was Captain of the Militia at that time. Mr. Barry says, "He was a man of business note and much esteemed by his townsmen."

His wife's father, Jonathan Turner, was the oldest son of John Turner, Sr., and Mary Brewster, and Mary was the daughter of Jonathan Brewster, the eldest son of Elder William Brewster. (Ref. Scituate Rec.; Dean's History of Scituate; Brewster Genealogy.)

When Sergt. Samuel was 85 years of age, shortly before his death, he deeded to "son Jonah" as follows:

"May ye 14, 1731

"Ye one half of ye tract of land lying in Scituate both upland and meadow where I now dwell which was given me by my honored father Robert Stetson of said Scituate, deceased." (Plymouth Deeds, B. 26, p. 127.)

Here Jonah built his mansion, probably in 1720, the date of his marriage. This fine old house is still standing in excellent condition.

(3) RUTH PENNIMAN of "Brantray," Int. June 13, 1741, who d. Apr. 20, 1791, aged 82 yrs.

John Stetson lived on the ancient Wanton place which he bought, together with the ship yard, in 1730, says Mr. Barry. He was a prominent Episcopalian, which probably accounts for his being published as a Tory in the early days of the Revolution. His burial place, with the family grave stones, may yet be seen near the site of the ancient Episcopal Church on Church Hill in Scituate. He was a shipbuilder and a man of much property, and he built the first tide mill at Scituate Harbor. (Scituate Rec.)

Of his family we read on the records of the Second Church the following note: "Hannah Ewell, daughter of Gershom Ewell and Submit, his relict, and wife of John Stetson of Marshfield, was baptized in private Sept. 25, 1728," says Mr. Barry. She probably died at that time. We do not know the connection between the names of Relief and Hannah. Both appear in the records.

Seth Stetson served as "Town Warden." In Matthew Stetson's account book appears an itemized account beginning Jan. 10, 1761, of the iron work of a sizable vessel for Seth Stetson, from which it appears that Seth was a shipbuilder on North River in 1761.

"When the Revd. Mr. Lawson forsook this church, he left no catalogue of them that were baptized by him; neither is there any to be found of those that have been baptized since the death of Rev. Mr. Mighil; therefore, I thought fit soon after my ordination, to desire those that have been, and have had their children baptized since that time to give in their names to me, and according to my request many have done; whom, I have recorded." The first two were baptized before his day, the others by him. iii STEPHEN.

CHILDREN OF JOHN AND SARAH (WING) ROGERS:
Born in Marshfield.

iv ELIZABETH (BETTY), b. Feb. (Apr.) 5, 1731.
v A daughter who probably d. young.

It is probable that there were other children by the first wife, but none have been identified.

Thomas Stockbridge was appointed his administrator June 7, 1762; there was no real estate; the papers described him as a tailor, as his father was before him. His estate was insolvent.

An indenture, dated Oct. 17, 1710, shows that Hannah Rogers, wife of John Rogers of Marshfield, was the daughter of Hon. Samuel and Sarah Sprague and was then living. Several deeds from John Rogers, tailor, between 1710 and 1744 have been found, to none of which was his wife Hannah a party. By deeds dated June 18, 1743, and July 12, 1744, are signed by his wife Sarah.

His son Stephen has not been traced. The only mention made of him that has been found, other than in father's deeds, is a deed from

Stephen, in which his wife Sarah joins, to his father, John Rogers, tailor, of Marshfield. (Plymouth Deeds 36/166)

There were two children by the second wife. Elisha Wing of Wareham, in his will (1752) mentioned "Philip Turner, the son of my daughter, Sarah," "and the two children of my daughter Sarah, left by her husband, John Rogers." And Elizabeth Wing, daughter of Elisha, in her will (1756) gave a legacy to Philip Turner, son of her sister, Sarah Rogers, and also to "Betty Hoxie, wife of Silas Hoxie, and daughter of my said sister, Sarah Rogers." (Plymouth Probates 14/199 and 326)

The identification of the John who married the widow Sarah (Wing) Turner was established by Mr. Drummond in his "John Rogers of Marshfield," by a deed from Betty (Rogers) Hoxie and court records, which the accidental discovery of the deed led to finding.

Betty (Rogers) Hoxie conveyed real estate which came to her as the heir of Stephen Stockbridge (1-6-7-1-3), son of Thomas and Hannah (Rogers) Stockbridge. She became his heir under the then existing law (which was soon changed), whereby a man dying without children, father or mother, brothers or sisters, nephews or nieces, would leave his surviving uncles and aunts to inherit his property to the exclusion of children of deceased uncles and aunts. The nearest relatives which Stephen left besides Betty Hoxie, were cousins; therefore, as Betty inherited his property, she must have been his aunt, which she could be only as the half-sister of his mother, Hannah Rogers, and the John whom Betty's mother married must have been Hannah's father.

HONOUR ROGERS (Eunice (Stetson) Rogers, Cornet Robert Stetson), dau. of TIMOTHY and EUNICE (STETSON) ROGERS, b. at Marshfield. She m. WILLIAM TORREY, for his second wife, on July 12, 1711, son of DEACON JAMES and ELIZABETH (RAWLINS) TORREY, b. 1683. She resided at Scituate.

CHILDREN OF WILLIAM AND HONOUR (ROGERS) TORREY:

Born in Scituate.

i HONOUR, b. Dec. 18, 1711; m. Joshua Pratt Feb. 4, 1741/2.
ii WILLIAM, b. Dec. 22, 1713; d. in infancy.
iii HANNAH, b. Sept. 25, 1715.
iv WILLIAM, b. Apr. 17, 1718.

v Samuel, b. June 2, 1720.
vi Mercy, b. Aug. 4, 1722.
vii Eunice, b. Mar. 31, 1725.

These are the children shown in the town records of Scituate, but there were certainly others. Joanna Butler mentions in her will in 1745:

viii Jemima.

and calls them Torrey and describes them as her "cousins." The children of Honour Rogers would be her cousins, and they seem to be the only ones by the name of Torrey who could have come within any meaning of that word.

Among the deaths of Scituate is recorded:

x Japhet.

"Japhet, the son of Honour Torrey, and servant of Mr. Recompence Tiffany" was drowned Mar. 18, 1736/7.
(John Rogers of Marshfield.)

Timothy Rogers (Eunice (Stetson) Rogers, Cornet Robert Stetson), son of Timothy and Eunice (Stetson) Rogers, b. about 1690 at Marshfield, d. Dec. 10, 1763. He m. Lydia Hatch, dau. of Israel and Elizabeth (Hatch) Hatch, on Feb. 9, 1719/20. She was b. Oct. 16, 1699, and d. Nov. 5, 1766. Resided at Marshfield.

Children of Timothy and Lydia (Hatch) Rogers:
All born in Marshfield.

i Timothy, b. in 1720.
ii Israel, b. Nov. 22, 1722.
iii Peleg, b. Nov. 26, 1725.
iv Lydia.
v Amos, b. about 1728.
vi Zaccheus, b. July 1731 (perhaps 1730).
vii Adam, b. Feb. 4, 1732/3.
viii Elizabeth.
ix Jane.
x Eunice.

These names are not arranged in the order of births. The dates of births given are taken from records in possession of descendants, and when only the year is given, that is found from the age given at date of death. If these are all correct, we ought to be able to arrange the order with comparative accuracy, but Lydia was married in 1743, and Elizabeth is mentioned in a will dated Jan. 3, 1733/4, so they must come nearer the head of the list. Will dated July 6, 1763, probated Dec. 27, 1763, mentions wife, Lydia, and children, Timothy, Adam, Amos, Israel, Peleg, Zaccheus, Lydia, Lewis, Elizabeth Tolman, Jane Oldham, and Eunice Ford.

Will of Israel Hatch, dated Jan. 3, 1733/4, probated Nov. 8, 1740, mentions daughter Lydia, wife of Timothy Rogers, and two granddaughters, Lydis and Elizabeth Rogers. (Vol. 8, p. 248.) (John Rogers of Marshfield.)

Isaac Stetson (Robert, Cornet Robert), son of Robert and Joanna (Brooks) Stetson. He m. Elizabeth Pray, dau. of Ephraim and Elizabeth (Hayden) Pray, of Marshfield.

Isaac was a partner with his father and brothers in the "Mill on the Herring Brook" in Duxbury in 1707, but he was in Pembroke after 1712. (Early files of the Supreme Court, Boston.)

The next year after Mr. Barry published his record (1848) he called on Mrs. Content Crocker, a daughter of John Stetson and a granddaughter of Isaac. She told Mr. Barry that her grandmother was Elizabeth Pray of Marshfield, and said she remembered her well. (Barry's Private Notes.)

The widow Elizabeth married second Jeremiah Hatch. (Stetson Kindred, vol. 4, p. 102.)

Children of Isaac and Elizabeth (Pray) Stetson:

1-8-2

TIMOTHY STETSON (Robert, Cornet Robert), son of ROBERT and JOANNA (BROOKS) STETSON, d. 1759. We have found no record of wife or family.

We find from the probate records of Plymouth County that John Stetson, nephew of Timothy, was the administrator of his estate. From the following notes it seems evident that Timothy was an energetic inhabitant of Pembroke many years before its incorporation, a mill owner and a mill-wright, and at one time (1719) a proprietor in Middleboro.

On May 1, 1707, "Timothy Stetson of Duxbury in consideration of £10." gave "Lambert Despard, Robert Stetson, John Howland, Josiah Barker, Gershom Stetson, Isaac Stetson and William Holmes Free Liberty to build, erect or set up any mill or mills or ways upon ye land and stream commonly called Herring Brook in Duxbury." (Pembroke after 1712)

This was on "ye land I bought of Lambert Despard." "Sd Timothy Stetson to receive one eighth part product of said mill or mills." (Early files of the Supreme Court in Boston.)

In 1712 he sold land in Duxbury to John Thomas. (Plymouth deeds, vol. 17, p. 47.)

In 1719 Timothy Stetson mortgaged his farm in Middleboro to the "Prov. of Mass. Bay" "in the 5th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George by Grace etc. etc." consisting of "3 lots in ye purchase called ye Sixteen Shilling Purchase in Middleborough" being "ye 56 lot together with all ye houses, buildings, stables" and many other things." (Plymouth Deeds, 1719.)

He was chosen a member of the grand jury for trials at Plymouth in 1722. (Pembroke records.)

In 1730 Isaac Barker of Pembroke sued Timothy Stetson for using old timbers in building his mill. "One Joseph Tabbs, of full age, tesitfieth and saith that he did work with and for Timothy Stetson in building ye sawmill now in contraversie between the said Stetson and Barker . . . Barker told me he was to pay Stetson £37.10s for building of ye mill and that Stetson was to put in ye timbers of ye old mill . . . Never heard Barker make any complaint, but he set her to work a few days after she was finished." Verdict, "We find for defense and cost of court." (Early files of Supreme Court, Boston.)

We find no record of wife or family of Resolved.

In 1637 Robert Stetson, Jr., of Pembroke deeded "to son Resolved husbandman" 61 acres, "being a part of the farm on which I now dwell." (Plymouth Deeds, vol. 31, p. 57.) In 1739 Resolved Stetson deeded to the Town of Pembroke "dwelling house and land in Pembroke whereon I now dwell" "the land I bought of my father . . . being under great difficulties on account of a great sore . . . they having taken into their consideration the great difficulty of my circumstances." When the town of Hanover was set off from Scituate in 1727, Matthew Stetson's home lot consisted of 5½ acres at the "4 Corners," bounded south by the "Town Way" and west by "Countrey Road." The mansion is still standing on the Country Road, and his very large blacksmith shop occupied the corner where the several business blocks are now standing. Matthew's first five children were born here. In 1739, on the death of Benjamin, his father, Matthew came into possession of the farm at Bald Hill, and this same year he removed there with his family, selling his house and blacksmith shop to Maltiah Dillingham for 410 pounds. Matthew's account book kept at this time (1739-1760) still in existence, shows him to have been the village school-master. It contains many accounts against his neighbors for "schooling" their boys. He was also the village blacksmith. The accounts show many entries of ironwork for vessels built at the "ship yard at Bald Hill." Matthew was a man of large property. In the division of the estate of Benjamin, his father, in 1741 "the share of a township in Hampshire County adjoining Winchendon" granted to Capt. Benjamin for services in the Canada Expedition in 1690 was still in the family, and, together with the homestead, the pew in the old church "situated between the minister's (Mr. Eells) pew and Mr. Collamore's old pew" was with other property allotted to the oldest son, Matthew. (See Stetson Kindred, vol. 3, p. 14, for family sketch.)

Benjamin Stetson (3rd) (Benjamin, Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of Benjamin and Grace (Turner) Stetson, b. July 1, 1696, at Scituate, d. Aug. 31, 1758, at Hanover. (Hanover Rec.) He m. Lillis Turner, dau. of Samuel and ——— ( ) Turner, of Hanover in 1725; b. Apr. 27, 1701, d. June 1, 1755, aged 54. (Hanover Rec.) Resided at Hanover.

The farm of Benjamin Stetson, 3rd, a farm of 60 acres, was laid out from the common lands of Scituate to James Bates about 1690.

Cornet Stetson immediately purchased and deeded it to his son, Capt. Benjamin. (Plymouth Rec., B. 4, p. 76.) It was owned successively by Cornet Stetson, Capt. Benjamin Stetson, Benjamin Stetson, 2nd, and Benjamin Stetson, 3rd. The deed from Benjamin Stetson, 2nd, to Bejamin Stetson, 3rd, in 1725, the year in which Benjamin, 3rd, was married, was a deed of 81 acres, "being part of 2 60 acre lots," the original James Bates lot and the original John Vassal lot. (Plymouth Rec., B. 22, p. 10.) He built his house in 1729 and with his descendants occupied it for two generations. Benjamin, 3rd, was four times chosen selectman of Hanover and six times moderator at town meetings.

JAMES STETSON (James, Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of JAMES and SUSANNA (TOWNSEND) STETSON, b. Sept. 11, 1699, at Boston, d. 1772 at Hingham 2nd Precinct (Cohasset). He m. WID. MARGARET (HAUGH) OAKS, dau. of SAMUEL HAUGH, Dec. 16, 1733. (Orleans Rec.)

There is no record in Cohasset of the death of James or Margaret Stetson, but in "Central Cemetery" their children are buried beside those of the Rev. Josiah and Margaret Oaks.

James was a "farmer," a "housewright" and a "shipwright." He is first mentioned in the Hingham records (2nd Precinct) Aug. 12, 1724: "Voted that Jeames Stutson should have one pound and six shillings for work done in the meeting house about ye deacon's seat and making a closet under the pulpit." "In 1749 he owned the largest farm in the Beach woods." In 1750 he owned land on Main Street south of Rev. Nehemiah Hobart's, and probably lived in a house which is now Dr. H. E. Fernald's. Before 1763 he built on Elm Street, where he probably died in 1772. "He was one of the builders in 1747 of the fine old meeting house now standing on Cohasset Common. He purchased the older building and used the timbers and panels in building several Cohasset houses." (Cohasset Gen. and Hist., 1909, p. 403.)

James was evidently a builder of much ability. He contracted to build a meeting house for the First Society of Scituate in 1733, the year he was married.

From 1725 to 1729 and later he sold many valuable tracts of land in Hingham, mentioning "Ship Cove," "Cohasset Uplands," "crick that comes from Ship Cove." For one of these tracts he received, March 29, 1729, 320 pounds. (Suffolk Deeds.)

In the tax list of 1749 (the only list found either in Hingham or Cohasset), James Stetson was by far the wealthiest farmer in Cohasset. He had 14 acres under tillage and raised 280 bushels of corn; had 38 acres of mowing land and 100 acres of pasture. He had 2 horses, 6 oxen, 9 cows and a large number of sheep. He had, also, one slave. Only two inhabitants had more than one slave. (Cohasset Town Rec.)

SAMUEL STETSON ("Drummer Samuel," Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of SAMUEL and REBECCA (TURNER) STETSON or MERCY (DUNHAM) STETSON, b. about 1725, d. Feb. 5, 1791, at Hanover. (Prob. Rec.) He m. ALICE ROGERS, dau. of CALEB and MARY ( ) ROGERS, on Dec. 14, 1766, at Hanover. She was b. Feb. 19, 1745, and d. May 29, 1820, aged 76 years. Resided in Hanover.

Samuel was in Capt. Amos Turner's Company of Minute Men, Col. John Bailey's Regiment which marched on alarm of April 19, 1775. He had also two later terms of service. (Mass. Rec.)

JOHN STETSON (Thomas, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and MARY (BALSTON) STETSON, b. Jan. 12, 1720, at Boston, d. before 1808 (See Brother Ebenezer's will). He m. BETHIA OLIVER on Dec. 30, 1751. (Boston Rec.)

CHILD OF JOHN AND BETHIA (OLIVER) STETSON:

i MARY, m. Zachariah Sawtelle, Jr.

John's brother Ebenezer, in his will dated Jan. 4, 1806, bequeathed to children of John, but at the proving of the will Aug. 30, 1808, the only signers were Mary, wife of Zachariah Sawtelle and Joel Sawtelle, evidently a son of Mary. (Probate Rec., Cambridge, No. 21373.)

1-3-2-4

EBENEZER STETSON (Thomas, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of THOMAS and MARY (BALSTON) STETSON, b. May 20, 1724 (Boston Rec.), d. 1808. He m. (1) ANN ALLEN on Sept. 11, 1755 (Newton Rec.), d. April 16, 1756 (Newton Rec.); m. (2) LUCY RUGGLES on July 1, 1765, at Watertown (Watertown Genealogies by Dr. Bond); m. (3) SARAH COWELL on Dec. 31, 1772. (Boston Rec.)

Ebenezer is recited as being "feltmaker" and "hatter." He served in the Revolutionary War from Watertown. By his will his "personal estate," "house and lands in Watertown on Town Road and Charles River" were eventually to become the property of the descendants of his brother, John Stetson, and sister, Lydia Stetson Safford, i. e., the children of Joel Sawtelle and Thomas Safford, Jr. He also left a pew in the Baptist Church at Newton. (Prob. Rec., Cambridge, No. 21373.)

CHILD OF EBENEZER AND LUCY (RUGGLES) STETSON:

(Watertown Genealogies, by Dr. Henry Bond.)

i BENJAMIN FELTON, b. May 22, 1766, at Watertown. Evidently d. young.

1-3-3-1

CALEB STETSON (Gershom, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of GERSHOM and MARY (HOLMES) STETSON, b. Sept. 1708, d. 1741 at Falmouth. He m. DEBORAH MORTON, dau. of JOHN and MARY (RING) MORTON, of Plymouth, on Oct. 21, 1732. (Plymouth Rec.)

Gershom Stetson in his will (Probate Rec. 13-321) mentions the "children of son Caleb, deceased." Mr. Barry found no record of Caleb or his children.

The following is from Falmouth Town Meeting Records:

"Jan. 5, 1742. Voted to Zacheus Hatch for Caleb Stutson's grave cloths and coffin and digging his Grave, one weeks board and Tend-ance, old tenor £6-8-0." "To Obediah Butler for his tending Caleb Stutson three days, Old Tenor £6-15-0." "To Seth Halleway for fetching a doctor to Caleb Stutson Old Tenor 15s." "Town Meeting Oct. 11, 1745, To Ephraim Swift for caring home Caleb Stutson's widow, Old Tenor £1-15-0."

It is evident from this last item that Caleb was a long ways from home during his short fatal illness, and that his wife was not with him. Was this home in Plymouth, thirty miles away? and was this "Caleb son of Gershom"? We have found no other Caleb to whom it could apply, and we have no other knowledge of Caleb, son of Gershom, whom his father mentions in his will in 1754 as "deceased but having left children."

ELIJAH STETSON (Elijah, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of ELIJAH and RUTH (CHITTENDEN) STETSON, b. June 15, 1711, at Scituate; bap. Apr. 7, 1723 (Rec. of Second Church, Scituate); d. "from fall from horse Apr. 15, 1779, Elijah Stutson, age about 72 years." (Ch. Rec. of Winterbury (now Bloomfield), Conn.) He m. ELIZABETH COOMBS, 1737 or before. (V. R. Enfield, Conn.)

From land records of Hampden, Hampshire and Worcester Counties, Elijah Stetson (Stutson) bought and sold many large tracts and estates in Connecticut and Massachusetts from 1740 to 1761.

He is called "Trader," "Blacksmith of Scituate," "of the Elbows," "of Kingston so called above the Elbows" (in Springfield), and "Elijah Stutson, Jr. of Brimfield" in 1741.

In a deed given in 1760, "Sarah Stetson, wife of Elijah" signs. (Land Rec. at Springfield.)

LILLIS STETSON (Benjamin, Benjamin, Cornet Robert) (1-2-1-4-1), dau. of BENJAMIN and LILLIS (TURNER) STETSON, on July 8, 1747, at Hanover, Int. Feb. 28, 1747. She was b. July 25, 1726, at Hanover.

Joshua was in Hanover and later in Newport, R. I., possibly as we find "Joshua Stetson, mariner, of Newport, R. I. and Lillis his wife" sell land in Hanover, Mass., to Alexander Bradford, Dec. 29, 1758. (Plymouth Deeds 34/206.)

We find in the records of Scituate Town Meeting for the year 1751 "Town ordered paid to Benjamin Pierce, Jr., constable (collector) what Joshua Stetson was rated in 1747 for his bill for tonnage of a vessel which he could not get by reason as that said Stetson had no vessel ye year to be rated for 4s 3d."

CHILDREN OF JOSHUA AND LILLIS (STETSON) STETSON:

iii JOSHUA, b. June 14, 1752. (Mr. Barry says, "I have no record of his life, is he the child who died Aug. 19, 1754?")

We have no record of Joshua and Lillis after the birth of their son Joshua in 1752. Joshua, Sr., would then have been 39 years old and Lillis 26. Did they go to Rhode Island and have more children?

NATHANIEL STETSON (Elijah, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of ELIJAH and RUTH (CHITTENDEN) STETSON; m. Apr. 20, 1796, at East Abington, on Market St., aged 91 years.

"Simon Dillis was a member of the French Protestant Church of Boston. He married 2nd Eunice, daughter of Anthony Dodson." (Barry's private notes.)

Mary (Molly) Dillis' mother and an infant brother of Mary died on the passage to America. The interesting story of their flight from France is preserved by their descendants.

"He was for many years a school master in Hanover and quite noted for his eccentricities." (Barry.)

Probably a typical school master who boarded around. In 1752 bills for his board for 26 weeks were brought in, credited and paid, as also his bill for services.

He taught nine months in 1751/2 for £18, paying his own board. (Hanover Rec.)

SNOW STETSON (Ebenezer, Thomas, Cornet Robert), son of EBENEZER and LYDIA (BARKER) STETSON, b. Mar. 1730 at Scituate. "Married a French lady named Dupee in Newport, R. I. and died in West Indies aged 27." (Barry.)

He was a ship builder and a sea captain. In 1749 Ebenezer Stetson leased of Matthew Stetson "the ship yard at Bald Hill," and the same year his sons, Ebenezer, Jr. (aged 21) and Snow (aged 19) built a sizable vessel. An itemized account of the iron work is extant in an account book of Matthew Stetson.

Eighty years after Mr. Barry wrote of Snow's marriage and death we find the following, which would seem to further account for Snow as well as the vessel he built at Bald Hill: "List of vessels insured by Timothy Orne Co. of Salem," "1758" "Brigg, Success, Snow Stetson captain and owner" "Voyage to Barbadoes" "Was taken." (Essex Hist. Col., Vol. 31, p. 10.)

ANN DIMMOCK, dau. of TIMOTHY and ANN ( ) DIMMOCK, on June 3, 1742. She was b. at Mansfield, Conn. He resided in Mansfield, Conn., on the large farm left him by his father.

Samuel Stetson was ensign of the Mansfield Company, as we learn from the State Records. He also represented Mansfield at least four years as Deputy to the Colony Court, besides being a selectman of the town. From this we assume that he was a leading citizen of his town.

From the "Mansfield Rev. Rec." (typewritten at the Connecticut State Library at Hartford) in the division "1774 to 1778," pages 1-13 and 28, Samuel Stetson was chosen one of a "Committee to procure relief for our suffering brethren at Boston." Later, "to procure camp equippage," and in March 1780, at a special town meeting, the town "voted and made choice of Ensign Samuel Stetson to be a committee for supplying soldier's families with provisions." He was then 68 years of age.

On the strength of the above his descendants were granted eligibility to the Society of the American Revolution. (N. M. S.)

MIRIAM DIMMOCK, the widow of TIMOTHY DIMMOCK, JR. Resided in Mansfield, Conn., on a fine farm, a portion of which he inherited from his father.

We have found no record of children of Lieut. Eli. On the "Public Records of Conn." 1773, we find that Miriam Stetson of Mansfield, County of Windham, administered on the estate of "the late Eli Stetson" and was allowed to sell enough of the real estate to raise £156 17s to pay probate charges. From the same record we read that in 1752 "Eli Stetson was commissioner Ensign of 2nd Company 5th Regiment in this Colony" and in 1756, "Eli Stetson was commissioned Lieutenant 2nd Co. 5th Reg. in this Colony."

The following is copied from "Conn. State Library War, 7.59" "Conn. French and Indian War rolls" "Aug. ye 10, 1757." "Col. Conant's return." "The following is a muster roll of ye 1st Company of Melitia. . . . 5th Reg. Marched to succor. Releece & Assistance of ye forces under Command of Maj. Gen. Webb, at Fort Edward (and) Fort Wm. Henry. . . . put under the command of Jonathan Rudd as their Capt. and Lieut. Eli Stetson as their First Lieut." (2nd Lieut. Kingsbury and Ensign Bicknell.) v TIMOTHY.

The author of John Rogers of Marshfield says that no record of this family, either public or private, has been found and that it is by no means certain that these are all the children, and that it is not absolutely certain that Patience and Timothy belong in this family.

Patience named her oldest son "Peleg," and that son, Peleg Mann, named his oldest son for his WIFE'S grandfather, and his second son "Peleg Rogers," presumably for HIS grandfather.

Timothy died in 1845, and Arthur Rogers, the oldest son of Isaac, petitioned as "next of kin" for the appointment of the administrator. If Timothy was brother of Isaac, he had outlived all his brothers, and Arthur was his oldest nephew, and "next of kin."

Cornelius for many years kept "a tavern and house of publick entertainment."

From the Westerly Land Evidences, 1734, we copy:

"I, Stephen Saunders, in consideration of the affection and love which I bear my beloved son-in-law Cornelius Studson do give, grant etc. . . . . 4 acres more or less beginning at Attiquampo brook where ye road or highway leads from James Leweses to the highway that goes from Shattucks ware bridge to the Country road" . . . .

Here near the crotch of the road Cornelius built his house that afterwards became the Village Tavern. In 1737 Cornelius enlarged his plot to 14 acres by purchasing 10 acres of George Lewis.

In 1745 and successively for many years it was "voted that Cornelius Studson have a license to keep a tavern or house of publick entertainment." For this privilege he at first paid £3. annually and later as high as £8. Cornelius kept the tavern as long as he lived, and was succeeded by his son Stephen and later by Cornelius, Jr., and still later by his son James.

We find in the Boston records the following entry:

Jacob Stetson (Matthew, Benjamin, Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of Matthew and Hannah (Lincoln) Stetson, bap. Sept. 27, 1747, at Scituate.

We find no further record of Jacob. On the "U. S. Census of State of Virginia 1790, Shenandoah County," and on "List of Evan Jones" we find "Jacob Stotson," whose family consists of "11 white souls" having a "dwelling and two other buildings." There is no similar name on all the Virginia lists. If this refers to this Jacob, he would then have been 42 years of age.

1-2-1-4-3

Benjamin Stetson (Benjamin, Benjamin, Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of Benjamin and Lillis (Turner) Stetson, b. Feb. 28, 1730/1. (Hanover Rec.)

Benjamin is recited as being a mariner. After his father's death, he sold, between 1760 and 1765, the lands he inherited, to his brother Job and others and removed from Hanover. On these deeds he is called "mariner."

Mr. Barry says he had "been told that Benjamin married and left sons Benjamin and Peleg (?) and that he removed to Connecticut." Mr. Barry could find no further record.

He and his brother Job were of the fifth successive generation to possess the estate purchased by the Cornet in 1690 on "share line" (now in Hanover) and given to Capt. Benjamin.

JOB STETSON (Benjamin, Benjamin, Capt. Benjamin, Cornet Robert), son of BENJAMIN and LILLIS (TURNER) STETSON, b. March 22, 1733, at Hanover, d. June 10, 1794. (Winchester, N. H., Rec.) He m. HANNAH MUNROE on July 8, 1762. (Pembroke Rec.) He resided at Hanover, Leicester, Winchester, N. H.

Mr. Barry in his private notes says he removed to Leicester, Mass., and later to Winchester, N. H., and that he was a ship carpenter. He served in the Revolution from Leicester; was a "Minute Man" April 19, 1775, and saw other service. (Mass. S. and S. in Rev.)

In 1759, after the death of his father, he sold his father's house, 75 acres of land, a quarter interest in a saw mill on Burnt Plain, pew in the meeting house next to the pew of Elijah Cushing, Esq., to Israel Hatch (Plymouth Deeds) and removed. This was the farm deeded by the Cornet in 1690 to his son, Capt. Benjamin, Job's great-grandfather. It was owned by five successive generations during 70 years. The large house on Main Street was built by Benjamin 3rd and is still in excellent condition.

Job and Hannah were married in 1762 and the only date of birth is that of Benjamin, which was in 1781. Where were Job and Hannah between these dates and were they raising a family of which we have no record? In 1775 he was a "Minute Man" from Leicester, but this only is found in the Leicester records.

CHILDREN OF JOB AND HANNAH (MUNROE) STETSON:

i BENJAMIN, b. Oct. 16, 1781, at Winchester, N. H.

ii HANNAH. Mr. Barry, in his notes after his book was published, said: "Job had a daughter Hannah before he removed." We find the marriage of Hannah Stutson and John Foster, Mar. 9, 1789, on the Winchester, N. H., records, which would be evidence that Mr. Barry had accurate information.

Mr. Barry obtained from various sources imperfect information of Adam and six of his children, but could not find record of their births and was not sure the names were correct. It seems probable that Adam went early to Maine or elsewhere and later returned to Hanover with his family. After his death and the death of his son Joshua in the war, the family scattered.

His correct example as a Christian in various relations of life was crowned with consolation and peace in the prospect of approaching dissolution. He came to the grave as a shock of corn in its season fully ripe leaving behind him a worthy character. Ellis Benson (for earlier generations see appendix) (William, Elizabeth (Stetson) Benson, Sergt. Samuel, Cornet Robert Stetson), son of William and Elizabeth (Ellis) Benson, b. March 31, 1740, at Rochester.

Ellis Benson enlisted June 5, 1761, in Capt. Isaac Terbush's company of Provincial Troops. He gave his age as 21 years, which would correspond with the birth records of Rochester. Nothing further is known of him.

Stutson Benson (William, Elizabeth (Stetson) Benson, Sergt. Samuel, Cornet Robert Stetson), son of William and Elizabeth (Ellis) Benson, b. March 2, 1741, at Rochester, d. March 1, 1820, at Pompey, N. Y., buried in Delphi, N. Y. He m. Bathsheba Lewis, dau. of John and Bathsheba ( ) Lewis, about 1760. She d. July 18, 1830, at the age of 84 yrs., and was buried in Delphi, N. Y. (Benson Rec., 23.)

It is uncertain where this family lived for a few years after marriage, but in 1777 they lived on or near the Bennington battlefield at Waloomsac, N. Y., and only a few miles from Bennington, Vt. Various traditions are preserved of their experiences at this time, one being that Stutson was taken prisoner and sent to Montreal, and another that it was his son, Stutson, then ten years old, who was captured by the Tories or Indians. There is no official record of his having been a soldier at the time of the battle, though he is said to have been, but the Vermont Revolutionary pay rolls show that later he was a private in Capt. Matthias Button's company of Col. John Abbott's regiment of foot.

About 1785 or 1786 he moved a few miles to White Creek, Washington County, N. Y., where there was a Baptist Church, of which he became clerk.

His sister, Thankful Dutcher, and her family lived there. He came to Pompey, N. Y., about 1796, the year in which his brother-in-law, Benjamin Lewis, came. Several of his sons had come in 1793, and his daughter, Elizabeth Marsh, and her family in 1797.

He sometimes preached but was probably never ordained.

"During the Revolution this family lived in Schahticoke, N. Y., and lived there until 1790 when the first census was taken. In 'New York in the Revolution' by Roberts, he is credited with service in the regiment commanded by Col. John Knickerbocker and Col. Peter Yates, in Capt. DeGarmo's company, as was also Elnathan Benson, whom we suppose was his brother. Joel also lived in Pittstown, about six miles east of Troy, and in 1862 was living in the town of Ripley, Chatauqua Co., N. Y., where he applied for a pension, which was granted. In his application he stated that he was born in Fredericksburg, Dutchess Co., N. Y., and that he enlisted in Col. Van Schaik's regiment in 1776 and afterwards in Capt. Van Orman's company.

"While positive proof is lacking that he was a son of William Benson, many things contribute to the belief that he was. The name of Joel would have been given him after his grandfather, Joel Ellis." (Benson Records.)

SETH STUDSON BENSON (William, Elizabeth (Stetson) Benson, Sergt. Samuel, Cornet Robert Stetson), son of WILLIAM and ELIZABETH (ELLIS) BENSON, "May have been born about 1761 in Dutchess Co., N. Y." (Benson Records.)

"Seth Stutson Benson, probably a son of William and Elizabeth (Ellis) Benson, may have been born about 1761 in Dutchess Co., N. Y. The date of his death or name of his wife have not been found. He was a Royalist during the Revolution and became a refugee at Kingston, Kings Co., N. B., during or after the close of the war. It is thought he went there with John Marvin and other from Norwalk, Conn. Positive evidence that he was a son of William is lacking, though it is almost certain that he was. His name would have been given after his great uncle Seth Stetson.

"The name of Stutson would indicate strongly that he was a Stetson descendant as the names Studson, Stutson and Stedson were all from the same Stetson, and there were no other Stetson-Benson marriages at that period except that of William and Elizabeth Stetson.

"He would have been of an age to have been a son, and there were only two Benson families living in the vicinity at that period, and we know that he was not a son of Jacob Benson of Dutchess County. No list of his children has been found, but the Genung-Ganung Genealogy and the Marvin Genealogy give the records of two of his sons."

(Benson Records by Fred H. Benson.)

Elnathan Benson was a soldier in the Revolution in Albany County, N. Y. (as shown by the records). His name does not appear in the census of 1790. It is known that he lived in Pompey and Fabius, N. Y., in the same neighborhood as his brother Stutson from about 1799 to 1811 at least. His son Benjamin is said to have been born in Pompey in 1799, and his son Stutson born in Fabius in 1811 as mentioned in "Stutson Ben's Bible." He moved to the western part of the state soon after 1811, where the family broke up. It is not known what became of him or his five older sons.
